An aerial, high-angle view of a city street, likely in Buenos Aires, Argentina. The street is wide and has multiple lanes. Lane markings include 'TAXI BUS' and 'BUS' in white text. A bus is visible in the lower right lane. The buildings are multi-story, with some featuring ornate architectural details like domes and classical facades. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds. The overall image has a dark blue overlay, and the text 'NEIGHBORHOODS' is superimposed in the center.

NEIGHBORHOODS

Neighborhoods

MALASAÑA

Known as the centre of arts and culture this district is rich in history, its main plaza, Plaza de Dos de Mayo, was where the Madrileños rose up against Napoleon in 1802. Now the plaza is full of cafes and restaurant terraces. The area is known for its bohemian and hipster street life.

Neighborhoods

HUERTAS

Huertas is colloquially named after its main street, Calle Huertas, although it is officially part of Barrio de las Letras. More than a neighborhood, Huertas is a place for food and nightlife. There are plenty of little streets to discover, all lined with cool bars, old-school delicatessens, boutiques and more.

Neighborhoods

BARRIO DE LAS LETRAS

Barrio De Las Letras (The Literary Neighborhood) usually refers to the neighborhood just above Calle Huertas. It is named after the great writers who once lived there, such as Cervantes, Quevedo and Lope de Vega. You can actually visit Lope de Vega's house, now a museum, on Calle de Cervantes 11.

Neighborhoods

LA LATINA

La Latina boasts the city's oldest architecture (hence the name "Latin Quarter") and some of its finest cuisine. Make some time to explore the beautiful small alleyways nestled between 18th century buildings, and the tiny streets that turn into staircases, where restaurants put tables out on each individual stone step.

Neighborhoods

CHUECA

Famous for being Madrid's gay neighborhood for the past two decades, Chueca is undoubtedly one of the trendiest and most fun nightlife destinations in the city. During the day, Chueca offers fabulous restaurants, outdoor terraces, and boutiques.
